MIDDLEBURY 77 ST. LAWRENCE 40

Blue and White Takes Track Meet from New Yorkers. Hollister, Lee and Jones Feature.

The Middlebury track team easily scored its second victory of the season over St. Lawrence University, at Canton, N. Y., Saturday, May 13. The final score was 77 to 40, and considering the hard journey and the small number on men that made the trip, the college should indeed be proud of the work of the men who represented her against the New Yorkers.

This year's team is especially well balanced and is without doubt the best that has ever been seen at Middlebury.

Coach Holmes has developed the men gradually, so that everyone has been in the pink of condition for the meets. The results of his work are shown by the consistant work of the men and by the large number of records that have been smashed.

The team has lost a number of points owing to the enforced absence of Capt. Lamere in the distance runs but it is possible that he will be able to get into the Rensselaer meet, May 27.

The times of the events in the St. Lawrence meet were slower than in the Vermont meet but there was not so much at stake and the men were not pushed so hard. However, Jones lowered his two mile record to 10 minutes, 16 2-3 seconds, and would doubtless run well under this mark if pushed all the way. Thus far he has had to practically run his races alone.

Lee equalled his record of 10 feet 3 inches in the pole vault.

The star performers for Middlebury were Hollister, who captured three firsts; Lee, who took first in both hurdle events, second in the pole vault and broad jump, and third in the 100 yard dash; and Jones, who easily walked away with the mile and two mile.

Summary:

100 yard dash: won by Darby (M); second, Crayton (St. L); third; Lee (M). Time, 10 3-5 seconds.

One mile run: won by Jones (M); second, Cullen (M); third, Ferguson (St. L). Time, 4 minutes, 55 1-5 seconds.

Shot put: won by McGinnis (St. L); second, Tatro, (M); third, Brewster (M). Distance, 35 feet, 1 inch.

120 yard hurdles: won by Lee (M); second, Haydon (St. L); third, Hard (M). Time, 17 4-5 ceconds.

Pole vault: won by Short (St. L); second, Lee (M); third, Paulsen (M). Height, 10 feet, 9 inches.

440 yard dash: won by Hollister (M); second, Darby (M); third, Bowers (St. L). Time, 55 2-5 seconds.

High jump: tie between Tatro (M) and Saunders (St. L); third, Paulsen (M). Height, 5 feet, 3 inches.

Two mile run: won by Jones (M); second, Foster (St. L); third, Sheen (St. L). Time, 10 minutes, 16 3-5 seconds (record).

220 yard hurdles: won by Lee (M)

THE IDEALS OF MIDDLEBURY

BY CLARENCE E. BLAKE, 1873.

In 1911, the President of Middlebury College said: "I take the position that it is just as much the mission of the old line Yankee college to serve its constituency in economic and social fields as it is the mission of the western state University to do the same work in its territory. Hitherto we have been training Middlebury students to go out into the world, and compete with the forces of life in great cities. From this time on, I propose to train as many students as possible to go back to their homes, filled with faith in the destiny of the Green Mountain State, and there live and toil, and exercise an influence." In view of the fact that boys and girls were leaving their county homes in increasing numbers for more attractive life in the outside world, it has been the aim of President Thomas to make his college a revitalizing force to counteract this tendency. He would inspire the undergraduate body with a desire to take their education back to their homes and the rural towns of Vermont.

Early in his administration, he began to present this idea to the young men and women, directing their thoughts towards it and suggesting courses of reading along the line of social service. As a result, many have gone back home after graduation or settled in other rural parts He says:—"I hope I may see the day when I may have a map of Vermont in my office, with the blue flag of Middlebury in a hundred mountain towns, each flag indicating the station of some man or woman from this college, who has gone there, not because it would not be perfectly possible to get on the eligible list of teachers in Greater New York, but because there is need in Vermont, need which only trained leadership can meet."

The Carnegie Foundation found that Middlebury College had given more teachers to the state than any other institution. Nearly one-fifth of the High School teachers, Principals and others, are Middlebury graduates, as well as many district superintendents. It is safe to say that every one of these is a missionary of the Middlebury idea with reference to the up-lift of Vermont. A young woman who had worked hard to pay her way through college took charge of a school in northern Vermont, seven miles from the railroad. A copy of President Thomas' "The Idealization of the Near." fell into her hands, and she wrote:—"It brought so much courage and inspiration to me that I passed it on to other teachers in the town of —— and it would be impossible ever to tell you the good it has accomplished in this small town."

And why not social service for losing towns! "One man of the right calibre could lift a whole community, and one community so inspired would change a whole county." The University of Wisconsin touches its state atall points. Though in a little different way, its uplift and vitality are felt throughout the Death of Rev. Thomas W. Darling.

The Rev. Thomas W. Darling a graduate of Middlebury of the class of 1874, died at Windsor on Sunday, May 7. Mr. Darling preached at the Congregational church in Ripton while he resided in Middlebury. He attended Yale Divinity School and since his graduation there has been the pastor of churches in the following places: Westworth, N. H., Arworth, N. H., and Danville, Vt. Mr. Darling was a member of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity.

Former Middlebury Professor Dead.

Prof. Edward Hall Higley one of Middlebury's former professors, died at his home in Groton, Mass., on Friday, May 5th. Prof. Higley was born at Castleton in 1843. He entered Middlebury college with the class of 1864. During his sophomore year he joined the famous First Vermont Cavalry and fought with them during the remainder of the war. He attained the rank of captain and had some rather exciting experiences, being captured and spending some time in prison.

After the war he re-entered college and graduated with the class of 1868, being the valedictorian of the class. He was a professor of Greek and German in Middlebury college from 1872 to 1882. He then studied in Germany for several years, and later accepted a position as teacher of Greek and German in the famous Groton School in Massachusetts. In 1901 Middlebury college conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Mr. Higley was well known in Middlebury although it is 34 years since he taught here. He always endeavored to attend the commencements and keep up his old acquaintances. Mr. Higley was a member of the Middlebury Chapter of Delta Upsilon.

He was buried in Castleton on Tuesday.

Off for Intercollegiates.

Coach Holmes, Manager Paulsen, Lee, Hollister and Jones left on the noon train Thursday for the New England Intercollegiate Athletic meet at Springfield, Mass. Lee and Hollister were entered last year, and the former qualified in the high hurdles. The Middlebury men are all in the pink of condition, and expect to give a good account of themselves. Coach Holmes and his charges will return Sunday.

Professor Wetherell Lectures.

Prof. A. D. Wetherell gave an interesting lecture before the Faculty and Hawthorne clubs, Tuesday evening, on "The Battle of Gettysburg." The lecture was illustrated by stereopticon slides from Underwood & Underwood.

Prof. Wetherell has visited the old battlefield, and his remarks were therefore of added interest.

Varsity Disposes of Engineers in One-Sided Game—Weather Unfitted for Fast Playing.

In a rather one-sided contest Saturday afternoon, on Porter Field, Middlebury administered a 11 to 3 defeat to Clarkson Tech. The varsity led all the way and had little difficulty in disposing of the New Yorkers. The weather was cold, and with a high wind blowing good ball playing was almost an impossibility. It did not, however, prevent Robinson from turning in his customary home run, when, as first man up in the third, he clouted one of Bassette's fast ones for the circuit, nor Aylward, who seemed to take especial liking to his offerings in the seventh, when, with Bartlett on second, he repeated the trick. Bower and Dewhirst, however, were the high scorers for the day, each turning in three safe hits out of five trips to the plate, Bower's first being for three bases. In the field, Sears at third was the center of attraction, making a sensational diving catch of a line drive from Bassette's bat in the seventh.

Aylward, pitching his second game of the year, held his opponents safe at all times, allowing only five hits, striking out six, while Bassette, for the visitors, was touched up for fourteen safe drives, for a total of twenty-two bases.

It took five pitched balls to retire the visitors in their half of the first, every ball pitched being hit, but not till the sixth did they succeed in getting the ball out of the infield. Bower, first man up for Midd., was safe on an error. Brickett sacrificed him to second, but he died there, Robinson and Mott being easy infield outs.

Dewhirst opened the second for Midd. with a safe drive to right, and with Bartlett and Christian safe on errors, coupled with a sacrifice by Sears and Bower's three-bagger, three runs were scored.

The visitors were again out in order in their half of the third. But Midd., batting clear around, scored four more runs on a mixture of three hits, two stolen bases, two errors, a base on balls and two strike-outs. There was scoring in every other inning except the fifth, when both sides went out in order.

The visitors secured their three tallies, one each, in the last three innings.

In the seventh, Hatch was safe on a hit, went third, when Aylward, fielding Branche's roller to second for a double, threw directly over the bag, both Bower and Dewhirst covering, but neither attempting to take the throw, which was fielded by Bartlett in centre field, and scored on an out to first.

In the eighth, Hoyt, the first man up, was safe on an error, went third when Barclay's roller was booted, and scored a moment later on the third successive infield error.

In the ninth, Bassette, first up, poled one to right for two bases, went third on an error by first, and scored when

Good Sportsmanship.

The result of the Middlebury-St. Lawrence track meet on Saturday proved to be more one-sided than was anticipated. The New Yorkers did not develop the expected opposition, and hardly equalled their work of the year previous. However, what the Canton men lacked in athletic prowess, they more than made up in the excellent brand of sportsmanship which they exhibited. St. Lawrence spared no pains in looking after the interests of their visitors, and showed the best of spirit throughout. In fact, their cordial treatment of the wearers of the blue and white was the subject of much favorable comment on the return to Middlebury. An example of their sportmanship was exhibited in the half-mile, when the fast-tiring Ferguson of St. Lawrence voluntarily gave the pole to his Middlebury opponent, who led the field home by a good margin. This incident was characteristic of the spirit of fairness exhibited by St. Lawrence in every event, and is well worthy of commendation. One of the real tests of genuine sportsmanship is ability to keep one's head in the excitement and heat of competition, and accept defeat like men. In this, St. Lawrence more than met the test. Such genuine sportsmanship makes for the advancement of inter-collegiate sports, and is to be commended whenever evidenced.

Inter-Fraternity Scholarship Contest.

Without doubt every college in America offers to the enterprising student some sort of recognition by way of reward for excellence in some branch of recognized student activities. This is most generally true in respect to athletic contests in which letters and numerals are awarded. There is at the present time a growing tendency to recognize endeavor of a more truly academic nature in a substantial way.

The National Phi Beta Kappa society has for its distinct aim the awarding of honor to individual excellence, truly setting a premium on the above normal mind. This scheme, however, offers little incentive to higher effort for the average and substantial student, since by the very regulations by which the organization exists only one-fifth of a given class can possibly attain to its honors. Accordingly, since the majority see no hope of securing these honors, the incentive given affects only an ambitious few.

The Illinois State College some time ago adopted a scheme which would offer an inducement to the average student to improve his scholarship. Whatever the imperfections of this system, there can be no doubt but that the desired object has been attained to a great degree and this is found to be true in other institutions where a similar idea has been promoted.

Middlebury has of late years advanced its athletic standing to a remarkable degree, but this step forward has not been adequately balanced by an equal gain in scholarship. It is very often true that pressure brought to bear on the individual is resented, and fails to arouse in him a higher sense of obligation even to himself. With our college divided into distinctive groups as it is, and a keen rivalry existing between these groups, there is a splendid opportunity to use this situation as a fulcrum to arouse the pride of the individuals composing the various societies and thereby raise the standing of the whole student body of the men's college by a friendly and healthy rivalry.

There is now such a movement under way, and the various fraternal organizations are getting together by means of a committee to draw up a set of rules whereby that organization which presents the highest average scholarship for a semester's work shall receive recognition for the same.

In order to make this system complete, it will be necessary for the neutrals, without a definite organization, to join. We feel that the proposed plan is an important step in advance, if carried out in good faith, but its success is dependent on the manner in which the men of the college take hold of it. If we, as students of Middlebury, are honestly endeavoring to boost our college on permanent and substantial lines, as well as make the most of individual opportunities, this plan cannot fail to be fruitful of lasting results. We hope to be able to give information of more definite character in the next issue of the Campus. Don't fail to secure a copy.

Kaleidoscope Taxes.

Manager Harrison of the Kaleidoscope wishes to call the attention of the students to the matter of unpaid Kaleidoscope taxes. To date but a small percentage of the taxes have been collected, and as the book cannot be distributed until the students have paid up, it is desirable that delinquents should do so at once.

THE IDEALS OF MIDDLEBURY.

commonwealth. Probably this influence by the colleges, well-directed and sustained, would do much to prevent the establishment of a class of tenant farmers and would go far to enrich country life.

But this is not all, nor mainly, a matter of missionary zeal, of philanthropic effort, of sentiment. When we think of the backward towns of New England, we would do well to think, also, of some possibilities that are generally overlooked. New England is near the market. Her soil and climatic conditions offer certain advantages over the broad fertile plains of the west. Her water-powers are abundant. A change has come about. The West no longer competes with the East. Certain agricultural pursuits can be carried on in New England in successful competition with other parts of country. To mention only one:—Some of the finest apples sold in our cities, and at the highest prices, are from the scientifically-conducted orchards of Vermont, New Hampshire and other New England States. Eastern apple raisers have the adventage over those of the middle and far West. Two brothers, acting on "the Middlebury idea," after graduation established a fruit farm in southern Vermont, which has become one of the leading apple orchards in New England.

Agriculture has been reduced to a learned science, has become profitable. A farmer who has kept abreast of the times is no longer the drudge that his father was. He is often a man of importance and stands with men of large business and professional interests. More than anything else, it has been the cheerlessness of life that has driven boys and girls from the hills and valleys of Vermont. Improvements have removed isolation of the farm.

Since 1907, when Dr. Thomas made a study of conditions and surroundings of the homes from which Middlebury College students came, a rural awakening appears to have developed in many sections and especially throughout Vermont. At a State convention recently held in Rutland, one of the speakers said:

"Our State today is aflame with zeal for the promotion of prosperity and for the advance of the commonwealth in all that pertains to industrial and social welfare. All over the State there has been a movement for union of effort in promoting industry; organizations and individuals are pushing better farming and better marketing with notable zeal. Vermont is in the midst of an industrial and commercial revival."

For the best working out of any plan looking towards revitalizing country towns, a wise educational program is essential.

Numerous refining influences come in the wake of good schools. Boys and girls are more likely to remain at home and other families who seek residence in the town are of the better class.

The State can well afford to aid the weaker towns. She must, in selt protection, move towards equalizing and extending educational opportunities.

When Dr. Thomas came to the Presidency of Mi dlebury College, the State of Vermont had no facilities for special training of High School teachers and superintendents of education. The Normal Schools provided only for the lower grades. President Thomas asked the legislature for an appropriation of $6,000 to "maintain a department of Pedagogy for the training of High School teachers." He says, "I expected to find a good deal of opposition to the assistance of colleges among the legislators of Vermont, especially as many of them came from small towns and represent remote constituencies. To my surprise, they all confessed admiration for our old college and a desire to help, and the appropriation was granted."

The Summer School at Middlebury, in July and August, gives special attention to teachers who need the professional benefit. In the character of its instruction and in the standards maintained for the courses for credits, this summer term is similar to the academic year of the college. In less than a week after Commencement, the Summer session of 1915 registered one hundred and forty-nine, all mature students.

In the recent death of Mr. Joseph Battell, Middlebury College lost a devoted friend and the State "one of the most far-sighted and noble public-spirited men that ever lived in Vermont." One of his last benefactions to the institution was the gift of 31,000 acres of mountain forest land. This tract is in the immediate vicinity of the college and includes some of the finest portions of the Green Mountains. The State Forester estimates that the college should receive a considerable income from it, while preserving forest beauty and improving the property. President Thomas says: "My ambition is not only to derive an income, but to stem the tide of population away from these hill towns and restore industries to them." This tract extends into three counties, and thus lies in many townsheps of the Green Mountains.

Perhaps enough has been said to illustrate our point: To send a lot of educated men and women, with their elevating ideals, throughout the State, to retake lost places—to raise standards both of productive skill and the aim of life, will tell more for the well-being of the nation than to turn them loose with the usual American ideals for success in wealth and fame.

"What we must do is to take the boys and girls who come to study at Middlebury and give them just as good a college education as we can; and, in addition to that, fit them to go right back to their homes, or to some other community, and settle down there to earn their living, at the same time doing such social service work as will uplift the spirit of one group of families after another; as will give courage, raise new hopes for success, and inspire the Vermonters of today with determination to stay right on the old farm, right in the old home, but so to alter life and conditions that they and their children will never want to remove permanently."

A great need of country life is good leadership, the influence of trained men and women with predominant powers who can see and appreciate rural questions and meet them wisely; who believe in the country, in its material resources and in its possibilities for higher things of life. "There is, today, no more promising and desirable college student than the young man or woman who proposes to gain all the college can give, and then return to a life in the open country to enrich and enlarge it by the added power gained in college."—February Issue of The Vermonter.

Ball at Pearsons Hall.

Wednesday evening, May 17,at 6:45 p. m., a very brilliant and distinguished company gathered in the social hall at Pearsons to celebrate the return of the Victrola. About forty-five couple, representing all social classes, were present. The chief attractions of the evening were the distinguished looking "Count," with the tall silk hat, and his escort, who came from no one knows where and disappeared before the evening was over.

A large number of girls present, in spite of the protests of their escorts, fell victims to the charms of the tall, dark man in the checked suit, and strove vainly to win his favor.

As a whole, the party was the greatest success that has been scored in college for some time, and it is hoped that other affairs of this kind may follow.

Dramatic Club.

On Friday evening, April 28th, the Social Hall at Pearsons was the scene of a short entertainment. The Musigahe Club rendered several delightful selections, followed by two readings. Miss Elsie Foote, '18 read the "Soul of the Violin," and Miss Margaret Shay, '19, selections from James Whitcomb Riley. The Musigahe Club th n played for dancing.

Home Economics Club.

A very enjoyable meeting of the Home Economics Club was held Wednesday evening in the Sigma Kappa rooms. The entertainment consisted of games and dancing, followed by instructive articles from the current magazines on the subject. Refreshments were served.

Organized Cheering.

After a long period of slumber, Middlebury has awakened to the possibilities of concerted cheering, and efforts have been made to develop these possibilities. Last Friday evening, at the Union meeting, there was considerable discussion concerning methods and means of promoting better cheering and more of it. It was decided to follow the custom of other colleges and go down to the Athletic Field twice a week with the band and practice cheers and college songs. There will be some system of tryouts for cheer leader and a man to lead the songs.

Arrangements have twice been made this week for practice, but rain has interfered on both occasions.

INTERFRAT. BASEBALL STARTS.

Delegates Meet and Adopt Schedule for Season.

The interfraternity baseball league, organized by Coach Murch a year ago, will be continued during the coming season. Delegates from the various fraternities met in Mr. Murch's office on Monday, May 8 and adopted the appended schedule which will be played off on the old athletic field. It was decided to hire an umpire for the season, and Mr. Kenworthy of the village was the man selected to act in that capacity. It is anticipated that the same enthusiasm which marked the Greek letter struggles last season will again be in evidence in the effort to determine just where the Interfraternity Cup will be lodged for another year.

The schedule:

May 8, Chi Psi vs Alpha Sigma Phi; 9, Delta Sigma vs K. D. R.; 10, Neutrals vs D. U.; 11, Delta Sigma vs D. K. E.; 15, Chi Psi vs K. D. R.; 16, Neutrals vs Alpha Sigma Phi; 17, Delta Sigma vs D.U.; 18, Chi Psi vs D. K. E.; 22, Neutrals vs K. D. R.; 24, Delta Sigma vs Alpha Sigma Phi; 25, Chi Psi vs D. U.; 26, Neutrals vs D. K. E.; 29, Delta Sigma vs Neutrals; 31, K. D. R. vs Alpha Sigma Phi.

June 1, D. U. vs D. K. E.; 2, Delta Sigma vs Chi Psi; 5, D. K. E, vs K. D. R.; 7. Alpha Sigma Phi vs D. U.; 8, Chi Psi vs Neutrals; 9, K. D. R. vs D. U ; 10, D. K. E. vs Alpha Sigma Phi.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK.

The arrangements for Commencement Week are so well along that THE CAMPUS is able to announce the program in its principal features. The program seems to include all that either the returning alumni or students could ask for. The return of the Ben Greet Players, who added so much to last year's commencement, will be noted with pleasure. Many of the classes are planning reunions and the formal opening of Hepburn Hall and Mead Memorial Chapel will, together with the other events provide such a wealth of interest and entertainment that it is safe to predict a Commencement that will be of the most successful in Middlebury's history. Second Team 12, St. Peter's A.A. 6

The second team journeyed to Rutland Saturday afternoon and brought back the big end of a 12 to 6 score against the St. Peter's A. A. The Midd. men put up a much better exhibition than was perhaps expected, considering their lack of practice and team work. Ruether pitched the entire nine innings, and held the home team safe at all times. Parker featured the game with his work in the field and at the bat, while Earle was there in the pinch with a clean three-bagger with the bases loaded. The score by innings:

Middlebury,	1	0	0	0	1	3	0	4	3	—12
St. Peter's,	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	3	2	— 6

Batteries, Ruether and Butterfield; Hulihan and Terenezinni.

Neutral Girls Have Bacon Bat.

Saturday afternoon the neutral girls enjoyed a bacon bat down by the creek. In spite of the cold wind the big fire kept everything cheerful, and everybody enjoyed the bountiful, if somewhat smoky supper, cooked over it. After a few songs and yells to keep their "pep" in good working order, the girls adjourned, with a resolve to repeat the event soon.

Assists Teachers in Obtaining Positions

We receive calls for wide-awake and progressive teachers from every State in the Union, and we want more such teachers upon our lists.

We believe no agency in the country has done more for its clients or secured positions for a larger proportion of them. For several years we have had more positions than candidates, and we can certainly be of service to college graduates who wish to teach and WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO DO GOOD WORK.

Mr. Jones Visits Middlebury.

Mr. Jones, vice-president and general manager of the Wells-Fargo Company for California, was a visitor at the college Sunday. Mr. Jones is an alumnus of the University of Southern California and as he has an especial interest in colleges he grasps every opportunity for visiting them. He has travelled widely, not only in the United States, but in foreign lands and thus has visited a great many. He expressed the opinion that our campus was one of the most beautiful that he had ever seen.

The greatest of futures, he said, awaits the college graduate, who has an accurate knowledge of Spanish. He attributed much of his success in life to his thorough knowledge of that language and said that his company could not find enough men with a knowledge of Spanish to conduct their affairs in Mexico and South American countries. Mr. Jones said that his message to college men was to gain an exact knowledge of Spanish as the future of American commerce lies in South America.
